Land Mobile Radio (LMR) in the Vicinity of the Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project in Lewis County, New York

Comsearch was contracted by PPM Energy to identify and locate the LMR operators in the vicinity of their Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project in Lewis County, New York. Comsearch determined that there were 456 LMR systems registered in the Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project area within 15 miles of the center of the Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project. Table 1 identifies the LMR Systems and lists their pertinent parameters and owner/operator. Note that the majority of the LMR operators in the area are part of a governmental body, i.e. the State of New York, the County of Lewis and surrounding counties, various school districts and local governmental departments and the NEXTEL Wireless Co.. Figure 1 shows the location of the LMR repeaters out to a distance of 22 miles from the center of the Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project. All of the LMR repeaters are outside the boundaries of the Roaring Brook Wind Energy Project.

The frequencies of operation of the LMR repeaters are generally unaffected by the presence of wind turbines. Very little, if any, change in the coverage of the repeaters will occur when the wind turbines are installed. It is the intention and goal of the wind energy site developers that their new facilities will not have an impact on existing infra-structures including LMR. And although no impact is anticipated, the developer can be relied on to take steps to accommodate the LMR operators if a change in coverage of the LMR systems does occur after the wind turbines are installed. If there is a reported change in coverage it can be readily corrected by repositioning or adding repeaters that operate with the LMR system mobile units. This can be accomplished by adding or positioning the repeaters at locations within the wind facility. Repeater antennas can be installed on utility, meteorological or turbine towers in the wind facility if needed. The plans for the installation of these repeater antennas for this purpose should be given to the local government oversight authority for review and approval before actual installation is undertaken.
